DEDICATION

This Catalogue is humbly dedicated to two former collectors who were also editors of "Old Boys' Book" Magazines.

The late Herbert Leckenby, editor of

"The Collectors' Digest"

and

The late William H. Gander, editor of

"The Story Paper Collector"

Words would be impossible to convey the kindness, enthusiasm, co-operation and tremendous help they always showed to both the compilers at all times. This catalogue could be said to have been inspired by their own wonderful spirit, and never-to-be-forgotten contributions towards what is a very great hobby.

FOREWORD

With the hobby of collecting Juvenile Literature (popularly known as "Old Boys' Book Collecting") ever increasing, it has long been felt that a complete catalogue in book form should be compiled to include every type of publication.

The compilers have had many such individual lists published from time to time, mostly in "Collectors' Digest" Annuals. These, due to the vast amount of fresh information discovered in following years, have become very much outdated. Plus, also the fact that these Annuals have in their own right become rare collectors' pieces, and very difficult to obtain.

Therefore, the lists gathered together in this catalogue, obviously will serve many useful purposes. The main one being that collectors can now look up any type of publication in one single complete volume. Perfectly original however, are the lists of Juvenile Annuals published here, revealed for the very first time. These lists, then, apart from naming the publisher, plus dates and length of a paper's run, can refresh collectors memories in recalling a favourite periodical or Annual of their youth.

As mentioned earlier, the growth of the hobby is increasing all the time. This is mainly due to the great publicity given to it by the National Press, Radio and T.V., over the last 15 years or so. The ranks have swelled from the known hundreds to the many thousands. Although it is impossible to estimate exactly how many collectors there are, a well-known dealer of this type of collecting has stated that by his files of letters of enquiries he has received in the last ten years or so, the total is now at least over the ten thousand mark throughout the world.

One must not, of course, forget the half-a-dozen or so magazines that have catered for them over the years, and who obviously stimulated the interest which otherwise may have waned. They have also publicised the activities of the various Old Boys' Book Clubs in various parts of England and in Australia. What is, however, strange, is that the number of collecting magazines have gradually decreased down to only two publications for the ever-growing hobby. The first of these being the "Collectors' Digest" founded in 1946 by Herbert Leckenby, and now run so capably by Eric Fayne. The second, being the American counterpart, "The Dime Novel Round-Up" edited by Edward T. LeBlanc. An obvious explanation being for so few magazines, is the tremendous work involved in what is mainly a labour of love.

It would be, however, a mistake to assume that this is a fairly new hobby as some National Newspapers have claimed. Adult collectors of "Old Boys' Books" have been traced right back to 1860. The first collectors probably being readers who simply stacked up copies of each week's or month's issues as they came along, and then started looking for back numbers to build up and complete their sets. The first collector known being a Mr. J. J. Wilson of Liverpool, England, followed by Mr. C. A. Ransome of London, who, curiously enough, later became a publisher during the first twenty-five years of this century. But what is most interesting, is to note how roughly each generation of say twenty-five years has in the main, only collected magazines that they remembered and read in their youth. For instance, collectors in 1900 advertised for "Boys' Standards," "Boys' Jubilee Journals" and many other mid-Victorian papers, and these did at that time have a fairly good commercial value. Some twenty-five years later, the new group of collectors only advertised to the effect that they wanted $\frac{1}{2}$ d. "Plucks," "Boys' Friends," "Marvels" and "Union Jack's" that had come out in the 1900 period. The former hitherto 'wanted' papers now becoming of very little value. The only great exception in this field, which still is in force today, being the original Penny Bloods bound into complete volumes which fetch very high prices indeed.

It is also most amusing to note that many of the collectors just prior to the second world war scorned the offers of the 'new-fangled' "Magnets" and "Gems," and would not have them at any price! The main start of the collecting in this field, came just after the Greyfriars and St. Jim's stories had ceased. In the opinion of the writer it has just about reached its peak.

The writer who entered the hobby around 1953, found that the pre-war D. C. Thomson papers such as The Wizard, Rover, Hotspur, Skipper and Adventure were regarded as of practically no value, and were at that time in abundance. Indeed, one rather outspoken collector at that time remarked in print to the effect "that such rubbishy papers could never possibly be collected in future years" - yet the same pattern of events has happened as before. A fresh generation of collectors are advertising for them in vain, and they are practically unobtainable. At one period, an enthusiast in the "Exchange and Mart" was even offering £3 a copy for "Rovers" of the 1935 vintage, though, to be strictly accurate, the average price is only a fraction of that for copies when they are on the market.

It is fantastic to think that if the trend continues of papers in time becoming non-collectors' items, in about sixty years' time, when all the various generations of readers who read the Magnet and Gem in their youth have died out, such widely collected papers will become valueless.

Both the compilers of this catalogue have spent thousands of hours over the last fifteen years in gradually preparing these lists, and we only trust that they will give the reader the same pleasure it has been in our work to their final completion.

COMPILERS' SPECIAL NOTES

It should be emphasised from the start, that this catalogue is intended to be a useful guide to collectors of various types of juvenile periodicals. But it does not include a complete list of extremely juvenile papers, with the exception of comics and annuals.

We are well aware that certain papers have crept in that may appear slightly out of context; these are what we would describe as border-line cases. We felt it far better to include these than leave them out. Amongst these are included such papers as "The Rival," "Thriller," "Cheerio" and "Fun and Fiction." In fact former editors of "The Thriller" and "Fun and Fiction" have expressed surprise at them being considered as boys' papers, in their view they were intended for the market of readers of all ages.

The reader, then, we feel sure will appreciate the extreme difficulties encountered in compiling this catalogue. Firstly, it must be remembered that it was not until the mid-19th century that it became compulsory for publishers to send copies of their publications to the British Museum. Consequently many papers known to have existed prior to this period are not recorded there. Also many publishers even after this date did not comply with this law, consequently papers still turn up from time to time that have not been heard of before. But to be on the brighter side a great many papers listed in this catalogue we claim have never been recorded before in any collecting paper, Museum, Press Guide or Library.

Another difficulty is, that in cataloguing Victorian papers, especially those published by the Aldine firm, no dates appeared at all on the publications, and also many ceased without previous publishers announcement. In these cases, the last issue known has been considered as the final issue. Many papers even of today carry no serial numbers and although dates are shown it is impossible to work out the exact length of run. With printing strikes and issues not appearing for some reason or another, one could possibly work out a run incorrectly. On the other hand where complete sets have been examined, it has been possible to assess, what would have been the serial numbers and the run.

With the take-over of one publishing company by another, it is possible that readers may have editions by a different publisher than shown in the catalogue. We have tried to elucidate this as far as possible, but this fact should be borne in mind. One great company - Harmsworth's, which became Amalgamated Press, eventually changed its name to Fleetway Publications, and in recent years became part of the I.P.C. Magazines Ltd. As this latter company also incorporated many other firms such as Hulton's, Odhams and Newnes, who also published juvenile literature, one can see that it is easy to be confused by the publisher's imprint.

There is no question at all, that the biggest snags were found in listing the annuals. In fact if every juvenile type annual ever published was to be listed it would take up many volumes the size of an average directory, and we certainly don't claim our list to be complete. We do, however, claim to have listed all the collected annuals and popular ones. One must remember that in this field, every Christmas time hundreds and hundreds of them are published cheaply by small publishers and usually sold in local market places. These annuals not only bore no dates, but certainly very few found their way into catalogue files. It is also very difficult in some cases to define the difference between an annual and a children's book. An annual is usually a book that appears yearly about Autumn time, with the following year's date on the cover. Many annuals only appeared once, and many bore no date. We have done our best in the circumstances, and in the latter case have given the period in which it was published, whilst an annual with the date in large letters on the cover is obviously recorded in that year - even though it was published the previous year. We do, however, ask readers to bear with us on the difficulties encountered on this point, and ask them to use caution on the matter. In any case, whatever date is given it should satisfy the approximate period in which it was published.

Other difficulties are where monthly or weekly papers were bound and sold as annuals. Comics that became boys' papers, and boys' papers that became comics. Boys' papers and comics that became picture story papers, and boys' papers that changed style into adult papers. We cannot do any more than invite readers to write to us on any problems, when we would be only too pleased to conduct further research. This on any matter would be as much interest to the compilers as to the reader.

THE START OF BOYS' PAPERS

Charles Dickens in "Barnaby Rudge," where the setting of the story was presumed to have been around 1775, quotes Gabriel Varder as saying "I suppose that's out of the 'Prentice Garland, or the Prentice Guide to the Gallows' - giving a strong impression that boys' papers were in existence in the 18th century. Though if they were, certainly no record exists of them today.

The very first paper traced in records that catered purely for boys, and was published on a regular basis seems to be "The Young Gentleman's Magazine, or Monthly repository of Science, Moral and Entertaining Matter." It was published by G. Kearsly at No. 46 Fleet Street, London, when it ran from January until June 1777. In the last issue the 'conductors' of the magazine reluctantly announced its discontinuation through lack of financial support. Strangely enough the only copies of these papers known to be in existence are in the Libraries of the Universities of Yale and Illinois, U.S.A.

"The Juvenile Magazine," appearing some ten years later, had a slightly longer run of twelve issues, whilst in another curious gap of ten years, in 1799, saw "The Young Gentleman's and Ladies' Magazine" likewise having a twelve issues run. The contents of all these papers were highly educational, and were obviously aimed at the sons and daughters of the gentry, who alone could afford to buy them. In those days these magazines cost a shilling a copy - which is almost an equivalent of about fifteen shillings today! Monthly papers, for boys and girls after that date seem more numerous, and certainly far more successful, judging from their lengthy runs. "The Youth's Magazine" which started in 1805, appeared for no less than sixty-two years! "Youth's Instructor and Guardian," which commenced in 1817, had a magnificent run also, for thirty-eight years. An obvious pirate publication of the former, entitled "The New Youth's Magazine" found to its cost that dishonesty in trying to steal readers from a similarly named magazine did not pay. It finished after only ten issues.

When in 1832 the "Boys' and Girls' Penny Magazine" appeared, history was made, as this was the first weekly publication to appear which catered for the general juvenile public in England. Copies of this magazine are so rare, that the British Museum has only three - Nos. 9, 17 and 18, whilst the writer is most fortunate enough to have in his collection a further five issues with numbers up to No. 23; the last number known. Commencing in September, 1832, it consisted of eight pages, with the number of each page in each consecutive issue running continuously; no doubt to help readers who desired their copies bound into volumes. The front cover was at least three-quarters taken up by a black and white illustration depicting some incident from the main story. This was usually a famous fairy-tale, but written for older children in probably the eight to twelve age group. The rest of the contents were short pieces of interest depending mainly on the length of the main story.

Some issues I have show a further illustration on the back cover of one of the modern steam ships in that period (looking like a Noah's Ark, with a long funnel in the centre of the ship, belching black smoke!) whilst others have advertisements of a supplement giving the full procession of the Lord Mayor's Show in colour for the sum of only twopence.

An announcement in No. 21, makes such an astonishing statement in answer to a subscriber, that if it could be believed, would make the editors of some of today's juvenile publications green with envy. The caption says as follows:-

"The Christmas sale of this periodical was half-a-million, three hundred and thirty-five thousand —, making a grand total in figures of 835,000 copies being sold in one week."

When one considers that this was over one hundred and thirty-five years ago, when the population of Great Britain was only a fraction of what it is today and that before the advent of compulsory schooling, illiteracy was quite common, one can accept these figures with a large grain of salt!

Whether a rival firm was so impressed by its circulation figures that they decided to publish something similar is not known, but in June 1833, an almost identical magazine appeared on the market with a similar title - "The Girls' and Boys' Penny Magazine." Actually, it was the far more interesting of the two, as it catered for older boys and girls. Apart from the main story there were interesting articles on hurricanes, the Great Wall of China, the transformation of insects and short contributions by the famous Theodore Hook. How long this publication lasted is again obscure, as although the writer has an almost complete run up to No. 31, the British Museum can this time do much better and boast of five later copies with issues up to No. 36.

Weekly papers for boys and girls, from 1833 onwards were published quite frequently, and nearly all were of a highly educational nature, and mainly of a semi-religious nature.

With regard to the start of the famous "Penny Dreadful" in the mid-19th century, this in all probability started with Charles Stephens's "Boys of England" in 1866. This was priced one penny, and fourteen hundred prizes were given away in a simple competition in the first issue. The fiction was certainly wild and wonderful, each paragraph consisting of two sentences only, and this type of literature could be said to have been the very first of true boys' story literature.

Many large boys' paper publishing firms were in business during the latter part of the 19th century, such as E. J. Brett, Henry Vickers, Charles Fox, G. Emmett, Henry Lea, Hogarth House and The General Publishing Co., but they all soon folded up a few years after Alfred Harmsworth came on the scene with his first boys' paper "Halfpenny Marvel" in 1893. The "Union Jack" and "Pluck" followed in 1894, and the later mighty Amalgamated Press was firmly established.

The Aldine's, Pearson's, James Henderson and Trapps Holmes continued until the twenties, and then seemingly the Amalgamated Press had the whole field to themselves, until the Scottish firm of D. C. Thomson of Dundee, brought out the first of five best seller boys' papers in the "Adventure" in 1921.

The paper shortage at the beginning of the second world war killed off many popular papers, and with the changing tastes of juvenile readers they were fated never to return. Several attempts were made to revive the popular type of reading matter in well-produced boys' papers such as "Boys' World" and "Ranger" - but all failed, and it seems fated that the once so popular boys' papers have now become picture-story papers for the modern youth after less than two hundred years.

BOYS' PAPERS — NOTES

CAT. NO.
B19	A yearly publication, but not considered suitable for the Annual section.
B43	In addition there was a supplement edition given with B55.
B88	Exact number of issues difficult to assess due to the change-over from weekly to monthly publication and the fact that final issues did not show the full serial number.
B101	This was eventually titled Sports Library.
B134	Number 1 only titled Champion Boys' Paper Magazine. In 1914 this seemingly appeared in annual form only.
B140	Continued in annual form only. See A1558.
B148	This then continued as a monthly until July, 1934.
B184	In the last of year of its run entitled Boys' Herald.
B191	Continued as a paper for adults titled Jack's Journal.
B203	Numbers 1 to 11 issued privately to subscribers only.
B205	A newspaper supplement to the Children's Encyclopaedia (Children's Magazine) (My Magazine). Numbers 1 and 81 to 104 were issued as part of the Children's Encyclopaedia and bound with it. After June, 1919, the Little Paper was incorporated with Children's Newspaper.
B208	Full details as follows:- <table data-bbox="578 1119 1305 1266"> <tr> <td>Every Boy's Magazine</td><td>1862 to 1864</td></tr> <tr> <td>Routledges Magazine for Boys</td><td>1865 to 1868</td></tr> <tr> <td>Young Gentleman's Magazine</td><td>1869 to 1873</td></tr> <tr> <td>Every Boy's Magazine</td><td>1874 to 1889</td></tr> </table>	Every Boy's Magazine	1862 to 1864	Routledges Magazine for Boys	1865 to 1868	Young Gentleman's Magazine	1869 to 1873	Every Boy's Magazine	1874 to 1889
Every Boy's Magazine	1862 to 1864
Routledges Magazine for Boys	1865 to 1868
Young Gentleman's Magazine	1869 to 1873
Every Boy's Magazine	1874 to 1889
B212	Continued as a paper for a wider age group titled 'Mechanical Age.'
B262	Although published in the U.S.A. it has been suggested on several occasions that there was a British edition or at least this was sold in England. It must be stressed, however, that no copies have been located.
B263	Continued in annual form only. See A1579
B312	Extremely debatable whether this was a library or boys' paper. Included here as it is believed to have been published weekly.
B350	Presumed date 1907-1908 from an A.P. record book. The British Museum has no record, but copies are held in Fleetway House File Department.
B358	A paper written by boys for boys.
B360	No further details can be given. Unfortunately the copy owned by D. J. Adley is minus cover and therefore no details can be gleaned. Similar in format and content to Henderson's Lion Library.

THE GIRLS' PAPERS

It cannot be disputed that of all the juvenile papers collected, the girls papers have the least appeal to the collecting fraternity today. Apart from this fact, the quantity of girls' papers still in existence of the pre-war era are very few in number.

Many explanations have been put forward for this. The main one being that boys were more inclined to save and store their papers, whilst girls were far more tidy. Even in post-war years the male collector predominates over the female by a very large majority. It is also an amazing fact, that only about half-a-dozen female collectors of girls' stories have ever been known, and all the rest are men!

According to Editors of girls' papers, their circulations were just as big, or better than most boys' papers, and so the sad fact must be that the female species does not in the main like to think back in the past and collect papers of their own girl-hood. Though on the other hand it is conceded that there are a few female collectors of boys' stories, who only read this type in their youth.

Probably the truth of it is that many girls read the boys' papers up to a certain age in preference to their own publications, for there is in some cases a great difficulty in defining a true girls' paper. Whilst there were the orthodox papers for the girl at school, such as "Schoolgirl," "Girls' Crystal," "School Friend" and "Schoolgirls' Own," many of the weekly publications were directed at the girls in their teens, and had a far more adult flavour about them, with a strong love and romantic interest.

The most collected of girls' papers are "School Friend," "Schoolgirl" and "Schoolgirls' Own;" all of these papers were published by the Amalgamated Press, and dealt with the adventures of the girls of Morcove and Cliff House Schools.

There is an obvious reason for the popularity of the latter, due to the origin of these stories, the creator being Charles Hamilton, from whose pen came the famous Greyfriars and St. Jim's stories. It is true that he only wrote the first half-a-dozen of these Cliff House stories, but even so the strong connection is there. These stories were written in consecutively long periods by authors who wrote so many stories for the boys' papers. Men like Horace Phillips (Marjorie Stanton of Morcove fame), R. S. Kirkham, L. E. Ransome and John W. Wheway.

It is also interesting to note that apart from one or two instances the Amalgamated Press girls' papers were written entirely by men, and as mentioned previously, nearly all of them had the double job of supplying stories for both boys' and girls' papers. Certain other papers, such as the "Girls'

Friend," also had many excellent stories for schoolgirls. Easily the most popular being the "Pollie Green" serials that appeared written by Henry St. John (Mabel St. John) and these are greatly remembered by the older collector, and sought after in vain today. So popular were these stories that not only did they appear later in "The Girls' Friend Library," but they were again later serialised in the "Girls' Home."

Apart from the above papers mentioned, that are collectors' items, many of the rest are rather slow-moving and completely outdated for re-reading today. As a rule they are given a wide berth. A clear case in point, could be The Girls' Own Paper, which if collected is purely for curiosity value only.

GIRLS' PAPERSSPECIAL NOTE:

GIRLS' OWN PAPER — As this paper had a rather complex run and was at times rather adult in content, we feel further detail should be given.

Girls' Own Paper	3. 1.1880	26. 9.1908	Vols. 1 - 29
continued as:
Girls' Own Paper and Woman's Magazine	11.1908	12.1927	Vols. 30 - 49
continued as:
Woman's Magazine and Girls' Own Paper	1.1928	9.1930	Vols. 50 - 51

Each paper then went as independent publications.

continued as:
Girls' Own Paper Heiress	10.1941	2.1950

Continued as Heiress and not considered for inclusion in this catalogue.

As the Girls' Own Paper monthly parts were issued yearly in a volume entitled Girls' Own Annual, the two lists should be used in conjunction.

COMIC DEVIATIONS

Comic papers, that were intended purely for the juvenile market, did not really start until about 1900. Before that date, they were intended to cater for all the family, and so to be strictly accurate, should be termed as "Family Comic Papers." Many of these however, have been included in this catalogue, such as "Skits," "Gleam" and "Ally-Sloper's Half-Holiday," as they are still widely collected today, mainly by the older generation.

But even before these papers, there were other comic papers of a kind that usually contained just a few single illustrated jokes, and not the comic strip, which are usually the content of a true defined comic. Even earlier still there was another class of comic paper, which had no illustrations at all, such as the following:-

Comick Magazine	1796
Comic News	1847
Comic Times	1850
Comic News	18. 7.1863 to 24.12.1863.	24 issues
Comic Echo	29.11.1873 to 31. 1.1874.	10 issues

Another type of comic entered the scene in the years between the two world wars. This was the children's supplement or comic issued once a week by National newspapers. Perhaps the best known of these was the "Boys' & Girls' Daily Mail" published by Associated Newspapers, and remembered for Teddy Tail. The artist being H. F. Foxwell, who was also the illustrator of Tiger Tim and the Bruin Boys in the "Rainbow," "Tiger Tim's Weekly" group comics. It is probable that there were dozens of these supplements issued with newspapers throughout Great Britain, but of these the most notable cases were the following:-

Boys' & Girls' Daily Mail
 Boys' & Girls' Own. (Bristol Evening World)
 Children's Own Favourite
 Daily Express Children's Own
 South Wales Echo Children's Supplement
 Children's Sketch
 Pip & Squeak. (Daily Mirror)

Advertising has, to some extent in the past, used the comic as a form of media. Comics have been issued by manufacturing companies, and have been very well produced. Many magazines have also had, apart from comic sections for the children to read, give-away comic inserts, similar to those of the National papers' idea. Probably the best remembered were the following:-

The Cococub News Coco Cubs	} Published by Cadburys
Ivory Castle Arrow The Crusaders' Own Paper	} Produced by Odhams for Gibbs Toothpaste
Primo	Published by J. Lyons Ltd.
Ovaltine Comic	Published by Ovaltine, and given away with certain "Target" publications at Bath, Somerset.
Tot & Tina	Included in the magazine "Trio" published by Standbrook Publications Ltd.

Another comic that was given away was "Funny Pips;" this was issued free with "Boys' Leader" No. 1, dated 12.9.1903, when the front page featured "The Adventures of Sunny Jim and Dismal David." Whether this item was later issued as an independent comic is not known. Certainly no records exist of it being so.

Another phase in comic publishing took place during the 1930's, when many special comics were issued, of what are termed in the comic publishing world as 'One-Shot' types. These were on sale only at seaside resorts during the Summer season. Newnes and Pearson were well to the fore with this idea with brilliant coloured comics such as "Seaside Comic," "Holiday Comic," later extended to even Christmas time (for stocking-fillers), "The Christmas Comic." In recent years, however, this practice has been greatly extended, and the Summer Specials are on sale everywhere, apart from seaside towns, between the months of May and September. These today are quite bumper editions, usually priced between 1/6d. and 2/6d. each, for up to 96 pages. Amongst the many are:-

Buster Summer Special
Lion Summer Special
Lion & Valiant Summer Special
Smash Summer Special
Valiant Summer Special

The American type of comic-book started in this country in world war two, when they were introduced mainly by the American servicemen, and in time hundreds, if not thousands of different types of British American reprints were on sale. As it is our policy to keep our Catalogue essentially British, we have not included the D.C. and Marvel type comics. Even so, it is difficult at times to classify certain comics, one instance being "Tarzan" which had thirty-six issues running from 18.9.1951 to 3.4.1953, for although it is of the American type, we believe it to be of British origin. But in the main, other "Tarzan" comics were American reprints, and so to avoid confusion these type of comics are not included in this Catalogue.

	With Number 331 the cover states that Wonder now incorporates Funny Cuts, World's Comic and Smiles, but as this was not part of the title we have not recorded any run.

NOTE:

1. The firm of Target Publications of Locksbrook Road, Lower Weston, Bath, sold their three remaining comics (Bouncer, Dazzler and Sunshine) for a substantial sum of money to the Amalgamated Press, who purchased these comics for one reason only and that was to stop their publication so that their own comics would gain better circulation. Readers were told in the last issues that the comics would be 'joining' with certain A.P. comics the next week, and although we have shown these incorporations, the name was not shown in the title of the comics issued the following week.
2. Whizzer and Chips consists of one comic "Whizzer" published with a 'free' comic, Chips, inserted inside. A novel idea, but not a new one.

During the period 1940 to 1950 there were hundreds of comics issued, some bearing no dates or serial numbers. Some were only published for one issue and some at irregular intervals. It has proved impossible to trace them all, but the following list gives those traced. Details of dates and run, etc., have only been included where positively known.

PROGRESS OF THE LIBRARIES

The title of "Library" when referring to "Old Boys' Books" has always been hard to define. Especially so, when one considers that many of the weekly papers were published bearing the title of "Library." To give a few examples there was the "Magnet Library," "Nelson Lee Library," and from another publisher we had the "Aldine Half Holiday Library" and the "True Blue Library." In actual fact if this section referred only to the papers that bore the title of "Library" there would be some weeklies, some monthlies, and others that were only published occasionally. Therefore it would seem best to reserve the term "Libraries" solely for papers that were published usually in the small paperback size at the rate of two or more per month. Also for papers that were published at somewhat irregular intervals, for example the post-war publications, Sparshott Series and Hamilton & Co's Gold Hawk Books.

To state when the first Library was published is a very debatable question. In 1846 there was a paper entitled "Tiny Library," but as this was a weekly publication it cannot be included here. Evidence has been found that Libraries were published by the renowned firms of Brett, Fox and Strong, in the early 1880's, but very few records of them have been found. The earliest Library traced in research seems to be "Champion Series" published circ. 1880; this being priced 3d. and only running for ten numbers, no publisher's name being on the imprint.

The stories were like the majority of stories for boys at that time, very bloodthirsty. Charles Fox published in October 1885 the first "Champion Library" which had very famous stories published within its covers, one such story being "Life of Vidocq - French Detective."

The General Publishing Company of the Strand, were well to the fore of Boys' Libraries, as during the 1880's they published four that were very popular. "The Union Jack Library" being one of them in question, and having no relation to the later Amalgamated Press publication. It is understood that the Aldine Publishing Company later took over this firm.

It would be fair enough to say, however, that the real pioneers in the publishing of "Libraries" were the Aldine Publishing Company, for they certainly brought about a wonderful new era in juvenile periodicals. Previous to the launching of Aldine's first Libraries, the youth of the day had a rather dull and uncolourful type of story paper to look forward to. In fact Aldine's own weekly papers were no better, but with the Aldine Libraries came something much more spectacular. These Libraries had splendid coloured covers depicting the exciting events within the stories, and were also mainly of a pocket size that was much more compact and therefore easier to keep and preserve.

Many of the Aldine Libraries were reprints of American publications and did bear rather striking titles. In fact to us in this day and age, they do sound rather comic. To quote a few examples - "Tricky Sarah," "Who Did It," and "Where is Mary." These three being all items from "Detective Tales" (1st Series).

As time passed, Aldine published some really excellent Libraries, some of which are much sought after today. These papers told regularly of the deeds of well known rogues of the past. Many of these lawless rascals had the honour of a Library to themselves. To mention a few, Dick Turpin, Robin Hood, Claude Duval, Jack Sheppard and Springheeled Jack. Ainsworth's "Black Bess" also had a library named after her, but this was of course the Dick Turpin Library under another name. It is interesting to note, that many of these characters were still being immortalised only a few years ago in the Fleetway Publications.

Buffalo Bill, representing the law, had more stories written of him for Aldine's than all the previously mentioned rogues put together, for there were three series of Buffalo Bill stories which come into the category of "Libraries" that have been traced, and these alone total 1,283 stories. Of course many of these were reprinted over and over again, but then it must be remembered that even the famous "Gem" with its 1,663 stories had hundreds of reprints. It must then be agreed that Buffalo Bill was certainly given wonderful publicity by the Aldine Publishing Company.

The Amalgamated Press, [later Fleetway Publications, and now known as I.P.C. (magazine division)] in time realised that this library idea was something well worth developing and from 1906 until the present day have continued to do justice in this field. The A.P.'s first attempt, was in fact one of their best and longest runs, this being the well known "Boys' Friend Library," though curiously enough it was originally entitled "The Jack, Sam and Pete Library" for the first two issues. Throughout its run it contained the serials from the firm's weekly papers, in a readable novel form, the majority were abridged, however, before being reprinted.

From a collector's point of view it was a good thing that the A.P. did continue this policy of reprinting in "The Boys' Friend Library," for obviously if a collector is desirous of keeping one of his favourite serials that was published in the "Boys' Friend Weekly" which, say, had a run of twenty-five weeks, it is much more convenient to possess the reprinted version in its handy pocket form, rather than twenty-five issues of the original weekly paper.

The A.P. followed on in 1907 with a companion to the "Boys' Friend Library;" this time with a Library for girl readers. This was the "Girls' Friend Library," which also had quite a good run. This Library was not quite the same style, however, as the "Boys' Friend Library" as far as the reading matter was concerned, for it contained stories mainly with a love interest more similar to those in the later "Woman's Friend Library."

"The Sexton Blake Library" was another brilliant publication by the A.P., but in this case the majority of stories were completely original and reprints from other papers were hard to find. Probably this Library was the greatest success of them all as it is still being published today. Unlike many of the other Libraries that ceased through the second world war, it has been stated by former editors that it was not strictly a juvenile publication from around 1940, and was aimed at the general public.

Another largely sought after Library is the "Schoolboys' Own Library" which contained about 95% of reprints of stories from school-story papers such as "The Magnet," "Gem" and "The Nelson Lee Library." This Library, unfortunately, has suffered a great deal of criticism from Charles Hamilton and Edwy Searles Brooks' students, who claim, with some justification, that the original stories were so drastically cut and abridged in many cases that the reprinting of them has ruined the plot and character of what was originally a first-class tale. Nevertheless, they are still widely collected and the set of them are a wonderful asset to anyone desirous of having a collection of some of the best school stories in fiction.

Probably the best money value ever in this field was the "Monster Library" which contained complete reprints of series of St. Frank's stories that had appeared in the "Nelson Lee Library." Priced at a shilling they could be classed in the same wonderful value for money as the Howard Baker Ltd. "Magnet" reprints today.

Once again the Amalgamated Press had a companion Library for girl readers; this time the "Schoolgirls' Own Library," which was much more of a juvenile publication than the aforementioned "Girls' Friend Library." This Library was another of those whose contents were made up of reprinted stories, though some original yarns were included from time to time. Month after month a yarn of Morcove School would be published. These were said to be by 'Marjorie Stanton' (a pseudonym to cover the identity of 'Horace Philips,' though it is known that other writers used the name).

The famous Cliff House School was also given a great deal of space in this Library, and for some years a tale featuring this school would be published each month. The majority of Morcove and Cliff House stories being reprints from "The Schoolgirls' Own," "Schoolfriend" and "Schoolgirl." This Library was still being published until recent years, and although suspended during the last war, must have been the only one to reappear in post-war years. All the post-war issues being reprints from serials in such picture-story papers as the "Schoolfriend" and "Girls' Crystal." The style of the stories hardly changing, except that the Morcove and Cliff House stories no longer appeared.

For the boy who liked the sporty, adventure type of story, the A.P. published the "Champion Library" and "Football and Sports' Library." The stories in the former coming from serials in the "Triumph" and "Champion," whilst the latter came mainly from types of papers as "Sports' Budget" and "Football and Sports' Favourite." Neither of these two libraries seem to be in such demand today by collectors though they were nearly all good yarns, but possibly similar in theme. The stories in these Libraries were very similar to those published in recent years in the boys' picture-story paper "Lion" and "Tiger." In fact many of the authors were the same.

Before leaving the Libraries published by the Amalgamated Press, it is worth mentioning that they issued a brand new type of library since the last war, probably as an experiment to see whether the old library format would still sell. This was entitled the "Western Library" which had a run of just under five years and then was suspended. Possibly this may have been because the youth of today gets his western education mainly in the form of cinema, television and the American styled comics. To actually read a story of the West was seemingly making it too much hard work, and also the "Western Library" wasn't quite adult enough to catch on sufficiently to older readers.

It would appear, however, that a lot was learned from this experiment, as the firm now under the I.P.C. (magazine division) name is still doing a good business in the Libraries in a new style; that is in picture form. Though these are far apart from the Libraries of yesteryear, there is no doubt that they are a favourable competitor to the American comics which still swamp the bookshops today. One such title that was published in the "Thriller Comics' Library" was "The Blake Dragoons;" the author in question being 'Morton Pike' (D. H. Parry) whose work in boys' papers had appeared at the beginning of the century. It would, therefore, appear that some of the old-timers' stories are still worth publishing today, if only in picture form. There is further evidence of this if one peruses this Library carefully. Robin Hood, Claude Duval and Dick Turpin for instance. One story dealt with the adventures of Dick Turpin and the Silver Dwarf that was originally penned over fifty years ago, with Nelson Lee on the trail of the elusive dwarf.

James Henderson was another publisher of Libraries, though not on such a scale as the A.P. or Aldine's. The original "Nugget Library" was of a similar size to those published by the A.P., but not quite as thick. The later "Nugget Library" was, in fact, taken over from Henderson's by the A.P., along with several other papers such as "Lot O' Fun" and "Young Folk's Tales." Many of the stories in the "Nugget Library" were reprints from James Henderson's comic serials - and were really of a reasonably high quality. These are still much sought after today, and are inclined to be very scarce indeed. Perhaps they could best be assessed by saying that these were a happy medium between those of the A.P. and Aldine type.

The firm of George Newnes had quite a number of Libraries to their credit also. Some of these were in fact reprints from earlier Aldine publications, they having purchased the copyright when Aldine went in for religious and other mediums in publishing.

The Newnes' Libraries had quite a good variety about them. The American detective, Nick Carter, was in one of them and Joe Pickford was in another. That old rogue Dick Turpin was featured in a fairly successful and greatly collected Library, likewise the "Redskin Library" and its successor the "New Redskin Library." The latter being still sold as publisher's remainders just before the last war.

Reverting back to the "Joe Pickford Library;" this was, without question, one of the strangest Libraries ever to appear, as numbers 1-50 never appeared! To elucidate, it actually started with the "Bulldog Library" as a supplement, numbered 51A, price 2d (to get round the war ban on new publications) entitled "Tubby Haig Supplement," but after number 59A the title was changed to the "Joe Pickford Library" and was then numbered from 60, until it ceased publication at number 81. The stories then continued in the Newnes' "Adventure Library." There were, in all, thirty-one numbers all told in the "Joe Pickford Library."

Only one long-running Library seems to have been published by the invaders from Dundee - D. C. Thomson Ltd. In pre-war years that being the "Dixon Hawke Library" which ran between the two world wars. These contained, of course, stories dealing with their own popular sleuth, Dixon Hawke; at times two stories appearing in one issue. This detective was featured in two other Thomson publications, namely the "Adventure" and "Dixon Hawke's Case Book." Unfortunately, it was a strict policy of never mentioning or giving authors' names to stories, that probably made the Thomson Library never as famous as its rival "The Sexton Blake Library," though it has been established that many authors wrote for both firms.

Several 'occasional' papers have been published since the war and though these have not been published actually as Libraries they really come into the category of this article. To quote one or two there was "Sparshott Series" published by W. C. Merrett, which were school stories written by 'Frank Richards,' dealing with Sparshott School. There were only six of these issued, but despite them being really excellent yarns, the price of a shilling a copy required, no doubt put many would-be readers off. As a direct contrast in value, another publication of note was Hamilton and Co's. "Gold Hawk Books;" these being only 1/6 each, the size almost four times larger than the former and equal to a modern Penguin Book. Each one of the Gold Hawk Books contained a really good yarn of St. Jim's, and when this series ended at number eleven, there were quite a few disappointed collectors.

"The Boys' Favourite Library" was another post-war attempt to publish a Library, and the first series by Panmure Publications, was almost a complete replica of the A.P.'s. "Champion Library;" not only the size, colour and stories, but the author as well. Each of these stories were written by E. R. Home-Gall, who had been for years a big contributor to the A.P. publications and wrote for the "Champion Library" under the pen-names of 'Rupert Hall' and 'Edwin Dale.'

Another post-war paper of the occasional type that deserves a mention is the "Schoolboys' Pocket Library" published by Gerald Swan. This was first issued at fourpence a copy and then reduced to threepence. This Library was actually a war-time effort, for it had made its appearance when most of the well-known and popular A.P. Libraries had ceased.

Although in appearance vastly inferior to the A.P. Libraries, these Gerald Swan efforts are much sought after, as they contain stories by Edwy Searles Brooks under several pen-names.

It would be fair to say that all the various Libraries had their own particular merits, and collectors obviously have affections for their own favourite reading - whether it be an old set of Rob Roy Libraries or a modern set of Sexton Blake Libraries.

THE ANNUALS

It's surprising the large number of people who collect Annuals of some description. These range from the extremely juvenile type such as "Tiny Tots' Annuals" to those of the almost adult. Annuals of course are much easier to collect and put into a large bookcase, and, above all - they can still be picked up very cheaply in jumble sales and many secondhand bookstalls up and down the country. The strong binding and stiff cardboard covers have preserved them, obviously more so than the thin paper weekly issues.

The exact definition of an Annual, is a book that is published once a year, and it does not necessarily have to have the word 'Annual' in its title. Some Annuals, of course, appeared regularly year after year. Others, and mainly the very cheaper type, were sold by traders in market places, only appeared once.

Easily the most collected Annuals are the B.O.P. and Chums, with their weekly/monthly/yearly issues in bound form. Without doubt, the most popular are the Greyfriars Holiday Annuals, which are also the most valuable. Comic Annuals are another popular collecting theme, when nearly all the famous A.P. comics had a yearly Annual featuring their own weekly characters:- PUCK, SUNBEAM, TINY TOTS, RAINBOW, PLAYBOX, TIGER TIM'S, BO-PEEP, BUBBLES, CHICK'S OWN, CRACKERS: whilst such was the popularity of Tiger Tim and the Bruin Boys that MRS. HIPPO'S and THE BRUIN BOYS' ANNUAL were also excellent additions.

A great puzzle is, why Annuals published with the same name as the penny, or black and white comics, never sold so well. CHIPS, FUNNY WONDER, JESTER, BUTTERFLY, JINGLES and FILM FUN ANNUALS never, according to their editors, sold as many as their coloured counterparts. Many feasible explanations have been put forward for this, but the probable one is that the coloured comics were mainly for the young age group, and their counterpart Annuals were readily bought by parents for them at Christmas time. Older boys and girls who bought their own black and white comics, were not so keen to pay shillings for an Annual.

Boys' papers also had their yearly Annuals with the Magnet, Gem, Boys' Friend, Nelson Lee Library and Popular, covered in general with the HOLIDAY ANNUALS. CHAMPION and TRIUMPH had their own individual Annuals for many years. The D. C. Thomson group at Dundee, went the whole way with all their famous five papers having a yearly Annual: Adventure being called ADVENTURELAND, the only variation of title.

Many publishing firms specialised in yearly Annuals: Collins, Dean's, Blackies, Nelson, Oxford University Press, whilst Gerald Swan gave another title to Annuals when he called them 'ALBUMS' just prior and during the second world war period. ANNUALS named after famous personalities are also very popular: SHIRLEY TEMPLE ANNUAL, ARTHUR ASKEY ANNUAL, DENIS COMPTON ANNUAL, and bang up-to-date, the ROGER MOORE ANNUAL.

When Annuals started is not exactly known, as records in the early 19th century are far from complete. Collecting Annuals can be a very interesting and cheap hobby, and some issues can be very valuable indeed.

NOTABLE MISCELLANEOUS PUBLICATIONS

Although this catalogue is arranged in definite classified sections, it would be most remiss of the compilers if they were not to make mention of the many interesting miscellaneous publications issued over the last twenty-five years. Whilst these do not fit into any special section of this catalogue, they nevertheless, have a definite interest to all collectors.

PIE

A pocket magazine published by Hutchinson for the adult market at seasonable intervals. Titles ranged from Spring Pie, Summer Pie, Autumn Pie, Winter Pie to Xmas Pie. In this magazine appeared the first stories of Carcroft School by Frank Richards. There were thirteen of these stories, with two strangely numbered No. 12. These were published between December 1944 and June 1947.

SILVER JACKET

Although an Australian magazine, this was on sale in this country. This had stories of Carcroft School by Frank Richards (reprints from PIE) plus many new stories. It also contained a serial of Biggles by W. E. Johns. There were thirty-eight issues commencing October 1953 until November 1956.

THE BUNTER BOOKS

These were new Greyfriars stories in book form, written by Frank Richards. Published first by Charles Skilton, and then Cassell's. There were thirty-nine of these books, and one also featuring Bessie Bunter.

THE TOM MERRY BOOKS

Published by Mandeville Publications and then by Spring Books. All original stories, though these did not have the impact of the Cassell's Bunter Books. The same publishers also published one book of Rookwood School and several "Jack of all Trades" stories by Frank Richards.

MAGNET No. 1 FACSIMILE

An exact reproduction of the very first Magnet, published by Fleetway Publications at 1/6d. in 1965, complete with an illustrated wrapper. The wording about Charles Hamilton being written by W. O. G. Lofts. In view of the fact of some collectors now believing that they have an original 1908 issue, it is worth mentioning that the original first number has the date 15.2.8. on the bottom back page cover. This is missing from the facsimile.

THE BEST OF MAGNET and GEM

Another good bargain at 3/6d., again published by Fleetway Publications in 1967; a type of Annual with soft covers. This contained reprints of early Greyfriars and St. Jim's stories, with many incidental items that had previously appeared in the Companion papers. This could be classed as a post-war Holiday Annual.

GREYFRIARS SCHOOL - A PROSPECTUS

This was compiled by J. S. Butcher and published by Cassells in 1965 at 30/-. This contained everything about Greyfriars; plans of the School, studies, members of each form, masters, etc. Whilst this book has unfortunately been criticised by more knowledgeable experts for its many inaccuracies, it was, nevertheless, very well produced. An extremely sad fact is that Mr. Butcher died just before the book was published.

THE PENGUIN BOOK OF COMICS

Published by Penguin Books in 1967 at 25/-, and compiled by George Perry and Alan Aldridge. This was packed with information and illustrations of the comics, though it could be criticised for too much American material, and lack of inside data on the English comics.

ARMADA PAPERBACKS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Published by Mayfair Books Ltd., at 2/6d. These were stories of William, by Richmal Crompton; Billy Bunter by Frank Richards; Biggles by W. E. Johns, and Mike stories by P. G. Wodehouse. They were in the main abridged reprints, and although many other stories were featured, these had the greatest interest to collectors.

MERLIN BOOKS

These were published by Paul Hamlyn Ltd., at 2/6d., and featured stories of Billy Bunter, Bessie Bunter and William. In the main, similar to the Armada Paperbacks.

SEXTON BLAKE STORIES published by Dean and Son

There were four of these stories published at the low price of 3/-, in stiff pictured covers in 1968. These were reprints of earlier Sexton Blake Libraries, and it is worth listing the titles here.

Raffles in Gibraltar	— by Barry Perowne
Danger at Westways	— by Donald Stuart
The Secret of the Snows	— by Gilbert Chester
The Secret of the Ten Bales	— by Anthony Parsons

SEXTON BLAKE OMNIBUS

At the time of writing the 7th Omnibus is being prepared. These are published by Howard Baker Ltd., and each contain two stories of Sexton Blake, being reprints of stories that previously appeared in the 4th/5th series of the Sexton Blake Library.

BILLY BUNTER'S HOLIDAY ANNUAL, 1967

Published by Odhams Press Ltd. in September, 1966, at 9/6d. With stiff covers, it was quite a good effort.

"A STRANGE SECRET" by Martin Clifford

Published privately by John Wernham, President of the London Old Boys' Book Club. This was an excellent production at 6/- in 1966, by the Hamilton Museum. It was a reprint of a pair of short stories in the "Gem" — "Under Gussie's Protection" and "A Strange Secret," featuring Valentine Outram.

BILLY BUNTER'S PICTURE BOOK

Another brilliant production by the Hamilton Museum. Published in 1967 at 15/-. Could be called a Panorama of the Magnet down the years.

GRAMAPHONE RECORD — "FLOREAT GREYFRIARS"

A long playing 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ r.p.m., No. 335SX/1784. Columbia, December 1965 at 32/-.

Side 1: Greyfriars Remembered

Side 2: Personal Reminiscences of Mr. Frank Richards

Starts and ends with the school song, specially composed by Charles Hamilton, and sung by the boys of Hendon Grammar School.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY of FRANK RICHARDS

Published by Charles Skilton, at 10/6d., 1952. Re-published as a Memorial edition in 1962 at 25/-.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

The famous book by E. S. Turner, and in the opinion of the compilers of this catalogue, most brilliantly written. First published by Michael Joseph in 1948 at 10/6d. — there have been many reprints (later ones revised) and even a paperback edition.

THE HISTORY OF OLD BOYS' BOOKS

Published as long ago as 1913, Ralph Rollington being the compiler; himself being a publisher and writer in that field. Publisher, H. Simpson.

THE WHO'S WHO OF CHILDREN'S LITERATURE

A truly delightful publication with many illustrations; a 'must' for all collectors. Compiled and edited by Brian Doyle and was published in 1968 by Hugh Evelyn Ltd., at 63/-.

B.O.P. No. 1 SOUVENIR EDITION

Published in 1967 at 2/-.

THE CHARLES HAMILTON MUSEUM

Published by the London O.B.B.C. at 5/-. Containing many pictures, letters, covers of Magnet and Gem, and no end of interesting material for the Hamilton fan.

COLLECTING MAGAZINES

As mentioned previously in the foreword, it is surprising that in view of the ever increasing growth of the hobby of collecting 'old boys' books,' only two magazines now cater for them. They are as follows:-

THE COLLECTORS' DIGEST — Founded in 1946 by the late Herbert Leckenby, and now edited and produced by Eric Fayne, Excelsior House, Grove Road, Surbiton, Surrey.

THE COLLECTORS' DIGEST ANNUAL — Started in 1947, and same details as above. Full details of current subscriptions will be given on application to Mr. Fayne.

DIME NOVEL ROUND-UP

Commenced in January, 1931, and edited by Ralph Cummings. Present editor, Edward T. LeBlanc, 87 School Street, Fall River, Mass., U.S.A. A publication devoted to the collection and preservation of American dime novels, the counterpart of the English Penny Dreadfuls and Journals. Details of current subscriptions, etc., will be given on application to Mr. LeBlanc.

Many other collecting magazines have appeared through the years - and many contain extremely interesting articles. Easily the best being the Story Paper Collector. Whilst other amateur papers at times included articles on old boys' books such as "The Red River Rambler" and "The Cat," only those with old boys' books as the main theme are listed.
